Now performing: HoustonFirstTheaters.com

Umbrella website encompasses Wortham Center, Jones Hall, Miller Outdoor Theatre

HoustonFirstTheaters.com is the new website to find information about three of the Bayou City's most important performing arts venues: Wortham Theater Center, Jones Hall and Miller Outdoor Theatre.

Internet users can also find information at the site about the underground Theater District Parking complex and seven parks located downtown, including Jones Plaza.

Each venue is municipal property owned by the City of Houston under management by the newly created Houston First Corporation.

"This is one-stop information shopping for those who love the performing arts in Houston," said Dawn Ullrich, president and CEO of Houston First. "The websites of the resident companies who lease our facilities – Houston Ballet, Houston Grand Opera, Houston Symphony, Society for the Performing Arts – are still the best place to go for show and ticket information at Wortham Center and Jones Hall, but HoustonFirstTheaters.com offers a treasure trove of information that will certainly make your evening all the more pleasant and seamless."

The site includes menus to the Encore Café locations found inside both Jones Hall and Wortham Center, seating charts, a photo gallery, media information, theater policies and booking information, facility tour details and links to purchase tickets for non-resident company performances.

HoustonFirstTheaters.com provides a link to Miller Outdoor Theatre, which has its own website and where all seats are always free.
